Bouygues press release

COP21: Bouygues wins two climate solutions awards for its Wattway solar road and the Hikari positive-energy development

Within the scope of COP21, the Bouygues group has won two climate solutions awards (Trophées Solutions Climat) for the Wattway solar road by Colas and for the Hikari positive-energy development in Lyon by Bouygues Immobilier. This morning, the jury, comprised of climate and resources experts, awarded Bouygues with two of its special prizes for major groups (Coups de coeur Grands groupes) in the “Reduction” and “Adaptation” categories.

In France, the Trophées Solutions Climat climate solution awards recognise the best nationwide initiatives that reduce the impact of and/or adapt to the effects of climate change^a.

► Wattway is the solar road developed by Colas. It generates electricity from photovoltaic panels whilst carrying all types of vehicles. Find out more here.

► Hikari, located in Lyon Confluence, is the first positive-energy mixed-use development in France thanks to its bioclimatic architectural design, the on-site production of renewable energy and pooled energy management. Hikari was developed by Bouygues Immobilier. Find out more here.

The Bouygues group is delighted to have obtained these two awards that recognise the tangible solutions developed by its subsidiaries to protect natural resources, reduce energy consumption and cut greenhouse gas emissions.

Colas and Bouygues Immobilier received their awards on 2 December at COP21's "La Galerie des Solutions", which is being held at Parc des Expositions Paris-Le Bourget between 2 and 9 December 2015. They were handed over by Ségolène Royal, France's Ecology, Sustainable Development and Energy minister, and Bruno Lechevin, head of Ademe (the French environment and energy management agency), to Hervé Le Bouc, Chairman and CEO of Colas, and to François Bertière, Chairman and CEO of Bouygues Immobilier, in the presence of Olivier Bouygues, Deputy CEO of the Bouygues group.

(a) The Trophées Solutions Climat prizes are awarded by Ademe, le Collège des Directeurs du Développement Durable (C3D), Crédit Coopératif, Orée, Solutions COP21, The Shift Project and World Efficiency
