PRESS RELEASE

PIERRE VANSTOFLEGATTE, CEO OF THE BOUYGUES CONSTRUCTION ENERGIES & SERVICES DIVISION

Philippe Bonnave, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Bouygues Construction, has appointed Pierre Vanstoflegatte as Chief Executive of the Energies & Services division with effect from July 1, 2020. The division comprises Bouygues Energies & Services, Kraftanlagen, Bouygues Energies & Services InTec and all their subsidiaries. He succeeds Olivier-Marie Racine, who is leaving the Group.

As Chairman of Bouygues Energies & Services, Pierre Vanstoflegatte will also be Chairman of Axione<sup>(1)</sup> and will represent Bouygues Construction in the governance structures of Kraftanlagen and Bouygues Energies & Services InTec, as well as Construction Venture, the Group's support structure for start-ups.

He will be a member of Bouygues Construction's Executive Committee.

The Energies & Services division is at the epicentre of today's global challenges and is a very important growth vector for Bouygues Construction. With 21,263 employees based in over 25 countries, it provides solutions and services for public infrastructure, buildings and industry. Its involvement ranges from engineering to installation and operation in areas including energy network infrastructures, street lighting, digital networks, electrical, mechanical and thermal engineering, and facilities management. In 2019, the Energies & Services division generated revenue of €3.8 billion (28% of Group sales) and took orders of €4 billion (33% of Group orders).
